

Normandy

I loved my trip to Normandy as there was always a thrilling activity to look forwards to. On the first day we left of with excitement for what was to come, I remember looking through the window and waving goodbye to my parents. Then we got to the ferry which, was one of my favourite parts of the trip. We could go around with our friends and spend our money. When we got back on to the coach to drive the rest of the way I fell asleep.

On the second day I was awoken by the murmur of people getting up and whispering among themselves. I loved the wide variety of foods and drinks for breakfast. After that we were put into groups for doing the activity's, first I did the climbing and the team work activity were you have to solve a puzzle together but in the afternoon we made a raft and paddled it down the river I kept on falling off and people had to pull me back up again.

The third day was probably the best as we got to go to a goat farm and buy some cheese from a French farmer. We also went into an old fashioned town with a castle at its core and got a delicious French ice cream at the end.

We went to the D-day landing memorials to eat our lunch on the fourth day. I was sad on the way back as I didn't want the trip to end, but I knew that everything must. I really enjoyed my time in Normandy and I am very happy I went there. I really loved the activities, the food and I strengthened and made a lot more friends.
